

SCREENING OF DOCUMENTARY ALIF

our institute has screened an “Educational Documentary - Alif” in our college Auditorium.

Alif revolves around the life of young Boy Ali and how his education becomes a grave issue. While he is earlier shown to be obtaining seminary education (at a Madarsa), his father, Raza soon realizes that in order to remain competent in this fast growing world, it is equally important for his son to learn English education. After Ali’s father, Raza’s estranged sister, Zehra who has one serious time there, yet at the same time, when she returns, she hasn’t been vanquished by her conditions there. Her heart is still delicate and her perspectives dynamic. She needs Raza’s child Ali, to stop the neighborhood Arabic theological college in Banaras and insists on providing convent education to Ali, so as to secure his future as a doctor. It is difficult for little Ali to make the move. It’s hardly a surprise that Alif is ineffective at school, since he knows little beyond the verses of the Koran. He needs to pack 12 years of English and One of his evil teacher treat him like hell as he don’t like children from madarsa face appalling treatment from educators who don’t care for a madrasa kid in their middle. They attempt to crash his training and treat him savagely. Raza also faces a difficult time with his sister who was married in Pakistan and was experiencing hell. Thus begins Raza and Ali’s fight against the society that’s not very accepting towards this change.

Educational Implications of Movie

Movie has shown how to include the modern approach of Inclusion, in a scene from movie where the principal gave admission to a muslim boy who was studying at madarsa earlier. The movie has shown how teachers discriminate with students on the basis of religion.

Alif movie at the end will leave you in a state where you will find the humanity in the society. There is no such patterns of belief which can make you separate from the rest of the world. Whatever the religious books say to people, it will be different from what they understand. The preacher also doesn't say thing which opposes the humanity of a person. This is what we will learn from the movie.
